

Pre-Dialogue Questions

From A Course of Love, 2nd Edition

Dialogue Unveiled, U.20-24

1. How little have we seen roles as boundaries, agendas as restrictions, goals as non-acceptance of what is, disagreement as judgment?
2. How does one function without time-limitations, scheduling, facilitators, and participants?
3. How does one assure that each voice is heard? That equal value is given to each comment?
4. How do people gather together with no structure?
5. What would keep such a gathering from disintegrating into a free-for-all? A celebration? A laugh fest? A crying jag?
6. How hard are you still willing to work to remain restricted and to restrict others?
7. How hard are you still willing to work to keep boundaries up and accomplish something rather than getting to know yourself and each other?
8. How determined are you to discuss certain topics rather than to let ideas flow?
9. How unwilling are you to allow the irrelevant?
10. How afraid are you of your inability to listen to the personal without judgment?
11. How afraid are you of being asked for advice or an opinion?
12. How strongly do you fear the discomfort that might ensue from being real?
13. Just how unspiritual do you think it would be to admit to fears or discomfort?
14. Just how awful do you think it would be to grow frustrated or angry or to disagree?
15. How willing are you to leave The Dialogues as a topic in order to enter the dialogue?
16. How willing are you to leave behind the wisdom of the Course to discover and offer your own wisdom?
17. How willing are you to accept the wisdom of the one voice in the many and the many in the one?
18. How willing are you to listen?
19. How willing are you to receive?
20. How willing are you to offer your gifts?
21. How willing are you to accept the gifts of others?
22. How willing are you to accept differences?
23. How willing are you to allow yourself to be fully who you are in the present moment in the company of those with whom you gather?
